City puts a lid on raccoons

Ban on wild animal feeding, power blowers

thing!

By SCOTT BREARTON

IN A decision hotly contested by many Carmel residents, the city council approved an ordinance at a meeting Aug. 4 prohibiting the feeding of wild animals within city limits.

The law will prohibit the feeding of virtually all undomesticated animals on public or private property within the city limits, including raccoons, deer, squirrels and pigeons.

Feeding birds will generally be exempt from the ordinance, with the exception of spreading large amounts of birdseed on city property or downtown. Bird feeding on private property will be allowed.

An increased incidence of raccoon problems similar to those plaguing Pacific Grove residents prompted the city action. Overturned trash cans, damage to homes and property (including hot tubs), and injured pets have been reported in Carmel, according to Planning Commission Chairperson Carla Ramsey, speaking as a resident of the city.

The concept stems from the assumption that, if not provided with a constant supply of food, the raccoons will return to the forest to gather their food from natural sources rather than turning to garbage cans for their next meal.

Ramsey cited PG's animal feeding ban similar to that adopted in Carmel.

"I agree that this would be a hard law to enforce," she said. "I have nothing against wild animals. The city of Pacific Grove has such an ordinance. I don't think this is a stupid ordinance," Ramsey added, citing a resident who phoned to report her dog's eye clawed out by a raccoon.

Councilwoman Barbara Brooks supported Ramsey's point: "We are asked not to feed wildlife by the SPCA and wildlife management agencies."

Rats in the attic

Mayor Ken White moved to approve the ordinance, citing his personal experience in the matter. White said he had heard animals scurrying in the attic of his Carmel home and dismissed it as a mouse problem. Before leaving for a short vacation, he said he set a large trap to catch whatever it was that was living in his house. White said when he returned from his vacation and checked the trap.

he found "a rat that was five-and-a-half inches long without the tail."

Councilman Bob Fischer voted no on the new law, which will go into effect Sept. 3.

"Residents call to tell me that they are strongly against the ordinance and that they enjoy feeding the animals."

A Carmel woman who opposed the law said the end result of such a law would be worse than existing animal problems, citing an incident in which her cat was poisoned after consuming rodent bait left by exterminators. She said her cat died after eating "fish-flavored rat food."

"Another Orwellian law"

Calling the ordinance "another Orwellian law," Carmel resident Al Kollmann was vocal in his opposition.

"I really hope you don't vote this thing in," Kollmann said. "It's just an-

Carmel's future begs for traffic, parking solutions

CARMEL COUNCILWOMAN Barbara Brooks may have put it perfectly when she said the automobile "is almost an appendage to our body."

not-too-distant future, Carmel merchants will accept carpooling and shuttling as a fact of life, even growing to enjoy them.

We know of the benefits: fewer parking tickets, fewer midday dashes to get to a car before the parking enforcement vehicle does, and more pleasant social opportunities.

To what extent can the city form policy around these commitments?

Brooks is a realist to say that at first there will be "resistance" to such lifestyle changes. That's human nature.

DOUBLE PARKING

Similarly, Councilman Bob Fischer spoke of this great modern attachment. "If you take a horse from a man, someone will hang. The same goes for his car."

Any discussion of parking and traffic inevitably concerns lifestyles, and lifestyles are not easily toyed with. Brooks is an optimist who believes that, in the

The 2016 Report, developed through the consensus of a diversified committee, is in part a study in wishful thinking, in part a view of the inevitable. Something is sure to be done to address these longstanding problems. The question is, what and when?

Pebble Beach Tax Hearings

By DON MONKERUD

WHILE THE Pebble Beach Co.'s tax hearings will recess today, Aug. 7, questions remain as to why the process is taking so long and whether lawyers are actually representing both the former owner, Minoru Isutani, and the new owners, the Lone Cypress Co.

The hearings which began on June 22 before the Monterey County Assessment Appeals Board will recess to be resumed in the Monterey County Courthouse in Salinas on Sept. 8. Hearings are tentatively scheduled to last through the end of the September.

While many participants are not surprised at the lengthy process, several legal professionals believe the Pebble

Beach Co. is intentionally dragging out the process. One county official said he felt like "an Ever Ready bunny that just keeps going on and on and on."

"Sometimes this looks like a filibuster," said one participant who declined to be named. "Part of the reason they have gone so slowly is that they must be trying to keep things for after the break. I assume there may be documentation later for closing the hearings to the public again."

In an earlier interview with The Pine Cone, attorney Charles Page of Hoge, Fenton, Jones and Appel in Monterey, acknowledged that he was working for both Isutani and the Lone Cypress Co., raising the question of who is paying the taxes and making decisions in the hearings. Hearing participants observe that Page assiduously attempts to distance the Lone Cypress Co. from Isutani.

The hearings are being conducted at

Cater to locals

Dear Editor:

Having lived in Carmel and its environs intermittently for well over 40 years, and being a loyal patron of the Mission Ranch, I am compelled to respond to both Laura Hamilton's and Stephen Dolley's critiques.

On my birthday this month my daughter, son-in-law and I headed for the Mission Ranch eagerly anticipating our always reliably delicious dinner. What a disappointment!

Our selections having been made from what I considered a fairly pricey menu, our dinners consisted of cold rolls, a so-so salad, the entree and a baked potato. We mourned the demise of that delectable cheese bread, lavish salad with shrimp, fresh vegetables, the deletion from the menu of many all-time favorites such as the steak sandwich — very often my choice. I'd strongly suggest catering to the locals, since, I'm sure, they are the backbone of their year-round business.

We are in agreement with Mr. Dolley's assessment of the drinks — he was right on target!

Clint, we need your clout! P.S.: Adios Mission Ranch.

Hey, Ed Dear Editor:

We think Ed Hicks is a fine fellow, but in his July 30 letter to the editor he seemed a bit befuddled. It is surprising that he doesn't understand that the statement posted in the city hall council chambers is not a "motto," as he calls it, but the law of our village, an ordinance, and one of the guiding principles upon which Carmel was founded.

Nor does Mr. Hicks have his facts right concerning the Carmel Residents Association. CRA supports the business community not only with words (a monthly column in our newsletter promoting local business and local business awards), but with events ("CRA Dines Out" at local restaurants) and with our dollars — the residents as a body have a household income of over $50 million (based on figures in the General Plan from 1979 census). We urge our members to buy locally.

We appreciate Ed's crediting CRA with responsibility for all recent city projects, but if he had examined the record, he would realize that the CRA took no official stand nor did we testify on either the Rio Park purchase or the First Murphy park. We do, however, believe, as have citizens' groups in the past, that it is important to

The western movie

WE'VE BEEN waiting, with more tolerance than patience, for the western movie to regain its popular and rightful place as a truly unique genre in the history of American film-making.

This is not to suggest on the eve of Clint Eastwood's public showing of "Unforgiven" that his latest western will reverse a trend that has gone totally the opposite of a good western plot, but we credit Clint with the nerve to go against populist opinion.

For us, the western movie has always represented uncomplicated entertainment, although generally of low grade. As in B-movie, at best. That seems to be the way it is with westerns. Granted, there have been some great westerns, and Clint's may be one of those, but they don't have to be great to be good.

As part of our tradition in movie appreciation, the western is to the point, a morality play of sorts where the good guys and the bad guys are clearly defined, where justice is swift and expedient, and where relationships are unclouded by therapy sessions, litigation, appeals and counter appeals.

OK, so it may be stretching it a bit to compare an allegorical "Everyman" to an Eastwood anti-hero role, but the western movie provides an escape from everyday life, and everybody needs that — contrary to the television mentality that insists we watch re-enactments of our latest familial breakdown.

So, we say good going, Clint. And we add, bring back the western movie not only to the big screen but also to our intrusive television sets that sit frequently idle while we wait for something better to come along.

preserve and hold in public ownership essential community assets. Carmelites are grateful that residents had the foresight to purchase and preserve the Carmel Beach and that former city councils purchased Sunset Center, prevented the sale of the Forest Theater and purchased Vista Lobos which would have become a dense apartment complex.

As for the current business situation, come on, lets get real. Hicks must know as all Carmel residents do, that the higher and higher rents charged by commercial landlords are the single most important reason that business is leaving Carmel or not starting up here in the first place.

United Way support Dear Editor:

An opportunity exists for us to show the community at large that the Carmel area cares. Times are tough. Budgets for education, social services and other human needs are being cut. Will you give a little time to make life better for your neighbors on the Monterey Peninsula?

Many generous merchants of our area have scheduled a first-ever, special sale event to benefit the thousands served each year by the charities of the United Way Monterey Peninsula. This one day, "Carmel Area Cares" sale will be held outdoors on Brinton's lawn in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center on Saturday October 3, 1992 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The general public is invited to this sale.

Fifty volunteers are needed now to assist in soliciting and collecting goods and certificates for services from area merchants as well as handling warehousing, set-up and marking items prior to the sale and cashiering during the sale. Special incentives such as coupon discounts redeemable for items at the "Carmel Area Cares" sale for all volunteers, and special prizes will be offered to the volunteers who solicit the highest value items for the sale.

Join other generous people from the Carmel area in this fun event. Donate some thing, bring your ideas and energy and you'll find you benefit the most by your contributions to the community. Call the United Way office at 372-8026 to sign up.

Thank you.

THE OLD redwood round marking the entrance to Carmel High School remains the center of a minor controversy, as the following developments illustrate.

People are using the redwood posts bordering the cross-section as locations for posting bulletins, since the sign's location is convenient and highly visible from the stoplight at Highway One and Carpenter Street. Covered with flyers and notices advertising everything from reggae bands to babysitters, the posts serve only to further detract from the sign's appearance.

As reported in The Carmel Pine Cone earlier, the round is showing signs of aging. Cracked and faded, the redwood round is scheduled to be replaced soon, according to CUSD board member Frank Pinney.

But the proposal to replace the 45-year-old sign has come under fire from an unexpected group – the Carmel High graduating class of 1947, from whom the sign was a gift.

"We are sensitive to the history of this sign," Pinney said.

At a district meeting July 23, Pinney said he had met with Brian Steen of the Big Sur Land Trust and selected two rounds, one of which will be used to replace the existing sign. The other will be used for another purpose on campus, according to Pinney.

He said because of the enormous size and weight of the rounds, the only remaining problem is a logistical one – how to get the rounds from Mittendorf Grove to the CHS campus.

CUSD approves on-campus suspension for CHS students

By SCOTT BREARTON

No Longer entitled to the free vacations associated with home suspension, Carmel High students who misbehave can expect stiffer penalties during the 1992-93 school year.

The Carmel Unified School District board approved a new in-house suspension plan that educators hope will help solve disciplinary problems at Carmel High School. At a district board meeting July 23, members unanimously approved what one official described as a change in technique, not policy.

"It may not work," said CHS Principal Marie Ishida, referring to the program 's one-year trial period. "If not, we'll forget it. But I'm hopeful that this will help change behavior."

With the new policy, in cases where a student was suspended to home, they will instead be suspended "in-house," or on-campus. "They're going to have to be at school, but won't have the opportunity to socialize," explained Ishida.

Except in the most serious cases — those involving weapons, assault or use of drugs or alcohol — suspended students will report to a detention center on campus. In serious cases, however, students will be suspended to home. Those students who are disruptive while at the in-house detention center will also be sent home.

For less serious offenses, students will be required to attend Saturday school, which has been effective, according to administrators.

"This is not a change in policy, just technique," said Carmel High Assistant Principal Patricia Beebe, who presented the new proposal at the meeting. Beebe said the number of days the student is suspended will be based on the severity of the offense.

"The assumption is that it would change behavior because their peers are

Arroyo Seco fire

VOLUNTEER FIREFIGHTERS from Carmel Valley and Cachagua joined forces to assist in the Ventana Wilderness wildfire that started Aug.

About 1,000 firefighters from across the state helped to contain 96 percent of the fire which destroyed 2,600 acres of wilderness over the weekend. The blaze was mostly concentrated in a region south of Arroyo Seco Road, near the Santa Lucia Adobe.

The fire in the south end of the 38,000 acre Ventana Wilderness was too hazardous to fight on the ground, and helicopters had to wait to make their rounds because of an inversion layer of air trapping the smoke over the fire.

The Monterey County Sheriff's Department reported that a shed on Arroyo Seco Road between Miller's Lodge and Fred's Camp caught fire as a result of spontaneous combustion.

Jamie del Valle, fire captain for the Cachagua Volunteer Fire Co., said that at one point the temperature at the top of Cahoon Summit off Carmel Valley Road was 89 degrees with four percent humidity at 10:05 a.m.

The U. S. Forest Service is in charge of the fire, which was initially handled by the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

CBA grapples with familiar, but thorny problems

Editor's note: This is the second part of a two-part interview with Toni Jepson and Gary Luce of the Carmel Business Association. Jepson has been executive director since December 1990, and Luce is in the middle of his second term as president. The CBA is 505 members strong, with 375 of those members from within Carmel-by-the-Sea proper. Roughly 60 percent of Carmel-by-the-Sea businesses belong to the association.

By PAUL WOLF Part 2

In THIS time of recession, when an assortment of new concerns has come to the fore, we sometimes forget about the problems of long standing. These all-too-familiar problems grow worse year by year, in incremental fashion.

Parking is the best example. Is there a point in making one-hour spaces two, or two-hour spaces four, if business owners and employees just grab those spots intended for customers? They themselves don't have a place to park either. Another one: Is there anything we can do about those massive trucks that act as road-blocks?

The following at least begins to explore these ever-present issues in the business district.

Pine Cone: Do you view business and residential interests as antagonistic? Or has the tension between the two been made too much of?

Jepson: I think people have made much more out of it than is the reality. I work with the businesses and I work with a lot of the residents groups too, and we are all after the same thing. I know that the residents, as much as they can, support the business community in terms of their purchase power.

We can't expect them not to realize a substantial savings by going to other places, but whenever it's practical I know that they do support the Carmel business community. I don't know how it (this tension) started or where it came from, but I think it is right now a myth. It's been blown up too much.

Pine Cone: Isn't it true that one feels this tension around election time? We did this past spring.

Jepson: Yes, and that's interesting because most of the business people, because they don't live in Carmel, don't vote. And maybe that's a frustration of theirs, and I can understand that because it is hard when you cannot control your own destiny.

Tibetan Geshe Lama seeks home in Pacific Grove

By TERRY FLORES

LOBSANG GYATSO is a perfect tenant.

He does not drink, nor does he smoke. Though he loves animals, he has no pets. Much of the day he spends meditating and keeping house.

He is a quiet ascetic who is interested only in the spiritual well being of others.

Gyatso, a 60-year-old Tibetan Geshe Lama, is looking for a home and he hopes to find one soon in Pacific Grove.

"The area—good," he says in his accented, but rhythmical English. "Peace and energy — all good in Pacific Grove. More (of my followers) will like (to) stay in Pacific Grove. That is why I try to find a home there."

The lama's followers come from as far north as Berkeley, and from Palo Alto and Southern California, he says. Pacific Grove would be more accessible, since many people know where it is.

Gyatso belongs to the Tibetan Buddhist sect known as the Gelugpas. People who are not familiar with Gyatso's title, "Geshe," can compare his spiritual leadership status to that of cardinal in the Catholic Church. Though Buddhism and Christianity are hardly alike, the Geshe degree is said to be similar to that of a doctorate of divinity.

Dalai Lama close friend

Only the Dalai Lama, a long-time friend whom Gyatso recently toured with during the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, has a higher leadership role since he is both the spiritual and political leader of the once-theocratic Tibet. The mountain country was toppled during the Chinese invasion of 1959 and very little of the Tibetan culture still exists.

The Geshe or "Geshela," as he is affectionately called, is temporarily residing at a guest cottage at the home of of one of his followers in Carmel Valley.

A corner of the cottage is decorated with dainty tea pots and a framed ceremonial headdress. The small twin-size bed where he often spends his days and afternoons, reading books or meditating, is covered with a single earth-tone sheet.

GESHE LAMA

His offerings to guests who enter the woody nook he has occupied for only the past three weeks are simple:

"Orange juice?" he asks. The Geshe, clad in a burgundy and yellow robe, nods, hoping you will take a buttery rice cookie or two. His guests, Jo Stallard and the owner of the cottage, oblige him.

Stallard, a Pacific Grove resident who considers herself a student of Tibetan Buddhism, says that though Geshela could stay in the Carmel Valley guest house for as long as he needed, his main concern has been to secure a place where about 30 people can meet on a regular basis to attend pujas, or worship gatherings.

"But I am very happy here, also," he says warmly. His philosophy centers on living life a day at a time and helping those who need his spiritual guidance.

Gyatso, however, was not always happy.

Nearly 33 years ago when still a university student, he fled Tibet along with the Dalai Lama and a contingent of religious and lay people. Communist forces had destroyed over 31,000 monasteries, according to Gyatso. For a month and 20

Stolen painting recovered before it was discovered missing

A PAINTING valued at $8,500 was recovered intact before the owner of a Carmel gallery discovered it was missing and reported it stolen Aug. 3.

Hans Skalagard, owner of Skalagard's Square-Rigger Art Gallery at Dolores and Fifth reported the painting "Stormy Sunset" stolen at 11 a.m. after returning from a trip to the post office and finding it missing from an unlocked outdoor display case. Little did he realize the painting had already been recovered by police earlier the same morning and was sitting in the evidence room of the Carmel Police Department.

"Apparently there's been some confusion as to when it (the painting) was taken," said Carmel Detective Warren Poitras. "It was recovered before it was reported stolen."

Interestingly, the police found the undamaged painting outdoors at 4:30 a.m., near the library annex at Mission and Sixth, according to Poitras.

"Someone apparently did move the painting," Poitras said.

According to police, Skalagard inadvertently left the painting outside the store overnight, and didn't realize it was missing until he returned from the post office the following day.

"He thought that he had it out in the morning," said Mignon Skalagard, the reporting party's wife, "but he must have left it out the night before.

"We've been in business for 27 years in the same locale and we've never had anything stolen here. Evidently things are changing in Carmel."

Stolen license plates

The Carmel Police Department is still investigating reports concerning stolen license plates last week.

A total of five vehicles were targeted over a one-week period, according to Carmel Detective Warren Poitras.

Three were reported July 25, all occurring in the same general area: Torres and Sixth, Lincoln and Sixth, and Scenic and Eighth. Two more were reported on August 1, both in the vicinity of Junipero and Eighth.

Poitras said no clear pattern was evident in this unusual series of crimes. Some vehicles had California plates, while others had out-of-town plates. The plates were simply unbolted and removed.

Police have no motive or suspects at this time.

Persons with information regarding this crime are asked to call Detective Poitras at 624-6403.

2016: Looking at traffic and parking problems

Supply and demand

When it comes to parking, there is a simple lesson in supply and demand. The city encompasses a mere square mile and boasts not even 5,000 residents, but it has a bustling commercial sector and a well-developed visitor-serving industry. Demand for parking, of course, exceeds supply.

And then there is what you could call the travel deficit: many more vehicles come in than go out.

The 2016 Report envisions a town committed to "favoring the pedestrian" but also committed to making it easy for those who need to park. Whether or not all the report's recommendations are eventually followed, there is a general sentiment that the two things can be done at once, even though in a way they may seem to be at odds.

If traffic is one headache, parking is another. The key here is the lack of supply.

They may not be at odds if the planning is done right. It is surely true that widening streets and constructing massive parking structures may serve a purpose, but they do not befit Carmel.

The report recommends — among a whole series of recommendations — a 15 m.p.h. speed limit for the entire city. Councilman Fischer said it's not so radical an idea considering so much of the town is already limited to 15 m.p.h.

The report encourages traffic-slowing techniques for residential streets, such as planting roadside trees and creating

4-Hour Enlargements

"meandering, narrow" lanes wherever possible.

One long-time supporter of residential values, while supporting the traffic-calming practices, opposes the universal speed limit for Carmel-by-the-Sea. "Fifteen miles per hours is unrealistic," said Bob Campbell, a former board member of the Carmel Residents Association, who could easily have been expected to support such a resident-favoring policy. "That would feel like walking. And it certainly would require a massive police interven-

Parking supply

If traffic is one headache, parking is another. The key here is the lack of supply. A frequently-proposed solution is a multi-level subterranean parking garage located at either Sunset Center or Vista Lobos park. A shuttle system would presumably be an adjunct to this kind of "satellite parking," conveying visitors and employees into the heart of town.

Whatever solutions are in the works. certain basic assumptions are clear, whether they are inferred from the report or from conversations with people who understand Carmel's values

• Shoppers should not — and should not have to — park in the residential areas. Residential areas should remain relatively quiet.

The report declares that "commercial parking encroachment into residential areas" will have been eliminated by the centennial. Is that possible?

Councilman Bob Fischer said such a ban would go after a symptom rather the root of the problem. "We have to solve the overall problem first," said Fischer. "It doesn't solve anything to just push the problem somewhere else."

· Business owners and employees should leave the commercial parking spaces to customers.

'It doesn't solve anything to just push the problem somewhere else."

• The time limits on most parking spaces are, if anything, too restrictive. Many city officials would more likely lengthen parking times, rather than shorten them.

But when the city recently doubled the time on 283 one-hour parking spaces as a means of spurring business, the result was that employees claimed the available spots.

· Walking, cycling, carpooling and "vanpooling" would be holistic approaches to the sum of parking and traffic problems in Carmel.

If our car-dependent ways are the starting point of the problem, they may be the starting point of the solution, many would argue. For now, the city appears to be on a course toward solving the problems by a combination of methods — some in which the city takes the lead, others in which it is up to the individual to meet the city half way.

the request of Pebble Beach Co. for a lower assessment of their tax bill for the 18 months that Isutani owned Pebble Beach. Court documents show that Isutani paid $837 million. Initially the county assessor assessed the property for $866 million but subsequently lowered the assessment to $723 million.

According to Monterey County Assessor Bruce Reeves, the initial assessment was made on the basis of an estimate due to Pebble Beach's failure to submit required information.

"Initial assessments were made without benefit of the purchase information to facilitate the flow of information and to create liens securing the new taxes," said Reeves. "Five and a half months after the date of transaction, the assessor made estimated assessments without the benefit of this information."

"My suspicions of Isutani's shakiness were confirmed when during the course of the hearings Mr. (Harry) White made a statement that we had to do something quickly which might lead one to believe that the second transaction (sale of Pebble Beach Co. to Lone Cypress) could have been somewhat of a fire sale."

Trade Secrets

At the start of the hearings on June 22, Page made an attempt to close the hearings to the public to prevent disclosure of "trade secrets" claiming such disclosure would put Pebble Beach Co. at a competitive disadvantage to other local resorts.

Deputy County counsel Diane Popowski successfully argued that the so called "trade secrets" were merely "business affairs," and that there was no legal precedent to hide the information from the public.

Tax appeal hearings have never been closed in Monterey County. But chairman of the assessment appeals board Steve Sasson explained that the board "left the door open" for reconsideration in the event Page presents adequate evidence that "any particular item they consider a trade secret will be detrimental to disclose."

Unlikely support

In documents filed with the Appeals Board, several local golf concerns submitted declarations supporting Pebble Beach Co.'s request for a partial closing of the hearings. Brian Smith, controller of Carmel Valley Ranch, argued that he would be at a "substantially advantage competitively by knowing the details of the Pebble Beach Co.'s internal business and financial operations."

In a subsequent telephone interview Smith admitted that his support of Pebble's position had been solicited but declined to name the source. "If we ever got in the same situation, we'd like the same treatment," he said.

Nick Lombardo, owner of Rancho Canada, Laguna Seca and Pajaro Valley golf courses, argued in his declaration to the Appeals Board that "my golf courses compete directly with Pebble Beach Co.'s," and that disclosures of internal financial information by Pebble Beach would allow him "to offer better rates during certain time periods in an attempt to attract golf and banquet business away from the Pebble Beach Co."

Lombardo told The Pine Cone that "the letter I sent was a generic type letter" that he would "send for anyone" in a similar situation, but stated "I personally don't want to be involved in Pebble Beach problems."

Art for the Home

Corner of Dolores and Sixth

If green fees provide a competitive advantage, several of the courses will have to raise their rates. Green fees at Pebble Beach for outside play are currently $200, Spanish Bay rates are $135 and Old Del Monte's are $40. Carmel Valley Ranch and Quail Lodge green fees run $95, while Rancho Canada is $50 and Laguna Seca is $45.

"If they (internal business and financial operation figures) were given out, it wouldn't make any difference to how we run our operations," says Ed Haber, president of Quail Lodge. "When you stay someplace you're concerned about how good the dinner and the amenities are and the level of service. Otherwise you have a bed. Pebble Beach is a remarkable piece of property that's known all over the world. They have no competition."

The hearings

Due to the large numbers of parcel assessments being contested, the hearings are grouping properties in appraisal units. So far the Old Capitol site, the Aguajito property, developable properties within 17-Mile Drive, the forest lot program, the road system, and the residences at Spanish Bay assessments have been presented. Assessments for The Lodge at Pebble Beach began last week and according to appeals board legal counsel Jose Ramos, will be completed by Aug. 7.

The difficult assessments of the golf courses and The Inn at Spanish Bay will be presented after the recess. These income-producing properties lie at the heart of Isutani's arguments for "nontangible values," specifically among which past chief financial officer Harry White told The Pine Cone was the potential for selling golf memberships.

While county officials decline to predict future tax appeals by Pebble Beach, they are concerned that the stage is being prepared by the current owners, the Lone Cypress Co. to lower its present tax assessment. Lower assessments would make reselling the property much more attractive to a potential buyer.

"There's lots more to this than Isutani and Cosmo World," said a county official. "The current guys (Lone Cypress Co.) are divorcing themselves from the whole proceedings. They aren't even attending the hearings. They give the perception that they are divorced from Isutani but they aren't. They want to set the stage for the past, the present and the future."

CUSD invokes new policy

present," Beebe said. "It should be as unpleasant as possible."

The plan would call for the hiring of an "in-house supervisor/campus aide" who will monitor students at the detention center. The supervisor will serve as a campus aide when no students are assigned to in-house suspension.

A student suggestion

Former CHS Student Body President Cristin Clack said Lance Thompson, the newly elected ASB president, was involved in the recommendation to adopt the new punishment.

"Some students look forward to it (being suspended at home), Clack said. "They try to get suspended just so they can get more time away from school."

Carmel Middle School has had an inhouse suspension program for several years, according to Ishida.

Board members, worried about additional expenses, questioned the need to hire a new employee. But that was before they were aware of the number of students committing serious offenses at CHS.

Beebe said anywhere from two to 10 students may be suspended on any one day at Carmel High, citing the need for a supervisor employed by the district on an hourly basis. "In the beginning of the semester, there are very few suspensions,"

Beebe said, explaining that as the school year progresses, the number and severity of offenses increases dramatically.

"Progressive discipline"

We should try to look at this as a positive thing," said CUSD Superintendent Vance Baldwin, characterizing inhouse suspension as a form of "progressive discipline."

"Unfortunately," he added, "there are kids who are uncontrollable. We don't want to reward students who misbehave."

Baldwin stressed that a two- or threeday home suspension is interpreted as vacation in the minds of many students. "Hopefully, by having the students in a school setting, something more productive can come from it."

The in-house supervisor will distribute homework and academic materials to students at the detention center and see they are making productive use of their time.

In other action, the board:

•Rejected a comprehensive improvement plan for Tularcitos Elementary, concerning everything from staffing to curriculum.

Members stated they need more specific information about certain financial details in the plan. Their biggest concern was the hiring of a "technical aide," whose function, they maintained, is uncertain and whose $6.754 in fees totaled more than 10 percent of the plan's total cost.

•Revised the 1992-93 budget to reflect year-end adjustments in revenues and expenditures.

'Unfortunately...there are kids who are uncontrol-lable.'

-Vance Baldwin

•Agreed to hold a special board meeting July 27 to consider awarding contract bids for reroofing and repairs at Tularcitos and Captain Cooper Elementary Schools. The board wants to complete the project before the beginning of the 1992-93 school year. Bids were awarded, and work is slated to begin soon.

•Received the news that the fledgling "Safe Homes" program is off to a great start. Frank Pinney, CUSD board member reported that a hundred or more parents are on the list. Pinney said he expects there will "probably be several hundred parents on the list by the time we're into this thing. I think it's great that the actual leadership has come from parents," Pinney said.

•Received assurance from Baldwin that all campuses within the district are virtually asbestos-free.

"In areas accessible to students, friable asbestos has been abated," he said.

Friable asbestos, such as that used in insulation, can be easily broken up and is most dangerous due to carcinogenic airborne asbestos fibers.

•Announced that work has been completed on a brand-new weight room at CHS.

"If you really want to do something about the raccoons," Kollmann added, you ought to make people have lids on their garbage cans that stay on when they're tipped over." In other action, the city council also voted unanimously to ban leaf blowers powered by internal combustion engines if audible from adjacent properties. The ban will take effect Sept. 3.

The city may adopt new regulations governing noise pollution in residential areas if the need exists.

Carmel Youth Center seeks weight-room supporters

By SCOTT BREARTON

SUMMER CAN be a carefree time filled with moments to remember. But for many youths, summer can mean boredom and too much time on their hands. Kids need a healthy activity to help keep them out of trouble. They need to start pumping iron at the Carmel Youth Cen-

"It's a great meeting place for kids," said CYC supervisor Pat Lenz. "They're all in it together here."

The CYC is looking for sponsors to allow all interested youths the opportunity to use the weight-training facility.

"We want to be able to make this facility available to everyone," Lenz said.

Former mayor Clint Eastwood established the Youth Center weight room five years ago to provide youths aged 13 to 21 a safe, professionally supervised facility in which to weight train.

Eastwood, with the help of his friends. including Arnold Schwarzenegger and Joe Weider, put together the funds and equipment to create a great facility.

To keep the weight room affordable to students, the Youth Center is asking people from the community to help support this program by contributing donations to pay the monthly fee for one student who can't afford it. There are many kids who cannot take advantage of the program because of economic restraints.

"People think that all kids from Carmel come from families with a lot of money," Lenz said. "It's just not true. Many of these kids have a couple of jobs and don't have time to work out. Many come from single-parent families."

A $15 monthly fee provides professional supervision at the weight room and maintenance of the equipment and facility.

The weight room will be open from 3 to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday during the summer. The facility is available to adults Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 12-1 and 7-9 p.m.

The program has had some early support from councilwoman Barbara Livingston, who contributed a one-year sponsorship in memory of Michael Cox, a young man who passed away earlier this year. Some Carmel city employees who use the weight room have also contributed to the program.

The Chinese communists who invaded the country killed one of Gyatso's brothers, though it would be 18 years before he would find out about the fate of any of his family members. His family remains in Tibet, having been unable to escape.

After continuing his interrupted studies in India, the Dalai Lama then assigned Geshela to promote Buddhist teachings to followers in the United States in 1981.

'Wonderful tenant'

Since then, he's been to India and back. Upon his return to the Monterey Peninsula in 1989, the Geshe was offered a small Victorian-style home on 11th Street in Pacific Grove, which he occupied for nearly three years.

Homeowner Margaret McGovern, Stallard's neighbor, let him stay in it for free.

Impressed by his sincere presence, McGovern realized that the humble Geshe would be a "wonderful tenant," she says. In fact, the home was so "lightly lived in" a person would not have known anyone was living there,

He took care of her home until she needed to sell it in June to help pay for her children's college tuition.

"He knew that time would come and he was always very gracious," she says. "I was very impressed by him and he was somebody I was willing to do that "As a tenant you could not ask for a nicer person. I felt the house was blessed with his presence."

Over the Fourth of July weekend, Ray March, editor of The Carmel Pine Cone in California, inadvertently left out the crossword puzzle.

Looking back, Ray wistfully remembers that some of the resulting phone calls were not really unpleasant, just indignant. Like all good editors he blames the lapse on "some inexplicable transition of type and page formatting." Even so, he moved fast to repair the damage.

In a shrewd mea culpa, Ray wiped out most of his front page the following week and filled it with the missing puzzle. And under the headline "We Apologize," he wrote, "May this never happen again."

In an editorial, Ray reminded the staff of his 77-yearold paper that they still had a thing or two to learn about their readers. "Caught in our own web," he wrote, "we forget at times that The Carmel Pine Cone is many things to many people: that it's not just the latest 'scoop' or latebreaking story that our readers are looking for. ... In addition to information — and hopefully enlightenment our readers want entertainment, intellectual challenge, perhaps some simple diversions."

Dropping the puzzle, he concluded, "was a sharp reminder that while we are loved, it may be for something other than what we think."

Plan strives to make water elections democratic

By PAUL WOLF

FORMER WATER director Billy DeBerry considers himself a perfect case study for why the water board should be composed of members elected from districts rather than in at-large elections.

For a water district that embraces more than 100,000 residents — from Carmel Valley to Sand City — the proposal to establish voting areas is a kind of milestone, a plan that could drastically change the nature of the region's water politics.

So far, you'd be hard pressed to find anyone who publicly opposes the concept.

As for DeBerry, back in November 1989 he had an experience he says he is still trying to forget. He was running as an incumbent director, having been appointed in 1984 and having been elected in the at-large election in 1985.

In the fall of 1989, "I was defeated by people outside my area," said DeBerry, a Seaside resident, speaking in a phone interview with The Carmel Pine Cone. "If you look at the record, you will see I had a majority in my area."

I was defeated by people outside my area.'

—Billy DeBerry

DeBerry, who is black, said he believes establishing voter districts is "absolutely necessary" so that minority groups do not find themselves elbowed out of the process.

The plan would call for five directors serving five districts. These would serve in addition to the appointed members, one county supervisor, and one mayors' representative.

Keeping communities together

"The goal would be to keep these voting communities together," said Jim Cofer, general manager of the Monterey Peninsula Regional Water Management District, explaining the logic of the proposal, without taking a position.

On July 20, the water board acted to get the wheels in motion to study the possibility of establishing voter districts. It called for the formation of a public advisory committee. The committee will consist of representatives from the eight involved with all in all the time and exjurisdictions within the district and representatives from several minority advocate groups, like the NAACP.

The district will hire a demographer to help draw various lines and a facilitator to ensure the smooth running of the committee meetings.

At this point, it appears very unlikely the advisory committee would not recommend voting districts. But no one in the district will make predictions.

"The history of most redistricting efforts is that they end up being resolved in court.'

—Dick Heuer

It is Cofer's opinion that, even if the board did not like the concept of voter districts, members would not be able to fend off a legal challenge based on the Federal Voting Act. Last amended in 1982, the act sets forth regulations that safeguard democratic practices.

Many district officials have spoken warmly of the concept of voter districts, but the main impetus has been the City of Seaside. There is a widespread sentiment that voter districts fit the ideal of providing the most direct form of democracy possible.

Yet it may not be quite so simple — or unanimous.

Predicts quibbling

Said Director Dick Heuer, a Carmel Valley resident and the only dissenting vote on July 20: "The history of most redistricting efforts is that they end up being resolved in court."

He said he can already predict the quibbling and arguing still to come simply by reviewing a proposed districting plan presented by the City of Seaside. He explains that Seaside's plan attempts to grandfather in the population of Fort Ord and limit the representation of the valley and Carmel Highlands.

It is expected that Seaside would hope to secure two votes on the board, from voters within its own city limits and in conjunction with Monterey residents. "If this is really necessary to give equity to minority groups — fine," said Heuer. "But if it is not really necessary, let's not get pense."

One man, one vote

The Carmel Residents Association has not yet taken a stand on the issue. CRA president David Maradei said it is likely to in coming weeks.

Pat Bernardi of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association said the CVPOA has not taken a position. But Bernardi, a Carmel Valley resident, former director and one of the best-known water observers, spoke as an individual who supports the concept.

"I believe in in 'one man, one vote,' " she said. "I think this could be very beneficial."

True enough, the board has seen directors who have originated from all corners of the district, but few would deny the board's makeup has been weighted toward Carmel and Carmel Valley.

Consider the five current officials, apart from the county and mayors' representative: Chairman Dale Hekhuis, Carmel; Fran Farina, Carmel Valley, Dick Heuer, Carmel Valley; Ken Long, Pebble Beach; and Jim Hughes, Pacific Grove.

Until very recently, DeBerry made sure to point out, the board's supervisors' rep was the fifth district's Karin Strasser Kauffman, another Carmel Valley resident. That made four of seven from either Carmel-by-the-Sea or Carmel Valley. (Strasser Kauffman was replaced recently by Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas, a Monterey resident.)

In Seaside, the city council has endorsed the proposal, and the city manager, Charles McNeely, speaks as a strong advocate. "It's not to say the directors aren't doing a good job, but we have been under-represented. There have been a lot of inequities over the years."

Heightened consciousness

Some observers have noted there has always been a heightened water consciousness in Carmel Valley, as well as a greater inclination to run for water board.

Part of the reason surrounds the fact that Carmel Valley residents live so close to the Carmel River and have had longstanding concerns about overpumping of the Carmel Valley aquifer. That, in turn, has led to a number of candidates and a number of faithful water-watchers.

"Many people in urban areas don't even know where their water comes from," said Bernardi. "They turn their water on, pay their bills, and that's all."

Nevertheless, Bernardi supports the idea of districts. She believes candidates for water board would be grateful if they did not to have to campaign in areas each encompassing more territory than any county supervisor's district.

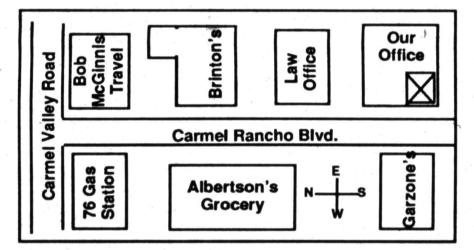

McNeely was asked whether districtelected officials could have the unfortunate outcome of encouraging narrower interests, rather than concerns based on the needs of a whole region. "I can turn that around," he said. "Whose needs, values and interests are these directors representing now? Aren't they reflecting those of Carmel or Carmel Valley or whatever they live?"

EIGHT HARBOR Seal pups were released into the ocean yesterday, Aug. 5, at Cypress Point Lookout in Pebble Beach.

The pups, abandoned during pupping season earlier this year, have been under the care of the Marine Mammal Center in Sausalito, according to a Pebble Company spokesperson.

The rescues resulted from joint efforts of the Monterey County SPCA, Seal Watch Volunteers and environmental staff from the Pebble Beach Co.

Since 1989 Pebble Beach Co. has provided screened fencing at Fanshell Beach and Cypress Point, allowing visitors to view the mothers and pups without disturbing the shy pinnipeds.

CBA sizes up parking, zoning issues in Q & A

Pine Cone: Please respond to these passages from the 2016 Committee report (goals for Carmel's centennial). The first reads, "Once a week, two central city blocks are closed to traffic to accommodate a European-style farmers' market."

Luce: The things that I looked at in that report were not specific recommendations - and these ideas need more review than just the committee's. But I'm all for the concept of not just doing business the same way day after day and doing something like this. On the specifics, the pros and cons would have to be weighed.

On that specific recommendation, I feel it could be a lot of fun. They are doing that in Monterey, and I think very successfully. I am not sure how some of the merchants who are selling some of the same merchandise would feel about it. It's very important during these times to be able to get those people involved as well.

We need to look at the parking report."

Pine Cone: Again, from the report: "Where possible, the city has created wider sidewalks, narrower streets, and more pedestrian amenities, such as landscaping, benches and drinking fountains."

Jepson: It sounds lovely to me. I'd like to see more outdoor dining in town. But before they start widening the sidewalks. they are going to have to start addressing the parking issue. I don't know how this specific proposal relates to parking or taking parking spaces out. But the concept is wonderful. I think it could make it more of a village atmosphere. But there are some problems we'd have to address before we can do that.

Pine Cone: Toni, you once described parking as the number one problem in Carmel. Do you still see it that way?

Jepson: Absolutely, in the minds of our members, it is the number one problem in the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea. The one-hour parking is too short for any visitor to do anything. Even for residents, two hours is rather tight for anyone to come downtown, have lunch and do some shopping. But the real issue is: many of the business people and employees have to use that parking because there is no alternative.

I think the Carmel Business Association has done a wonderful job of educating our members as to the importance of leaving the parking to the visitors and the residents — the paying customers. The one thing we cannot answer is when they ask us, "Where should we park? What is the alternative?" Other communities have addressed this very successfully. And we do need to look at some kind of satellite parking with shuttle service.

Pine Cone: What does satellite parking mean? Are we talking about parking garages or structures?

Jepson: I don't think these are things to be counted out. I'm not an engineer. but I do think they could be done. At Sunset Center you could put two or three levels in without even going above the ground level. And that's been talked about for a long time.

But, maybe we could find a spot out of town where employees and visitors could park and shuttle into town from. I don't know where that location is. In Capitola, they've done it very successfully. Santa Barbara has a very wonderful shuttle service.

We need to look at the parking report. They spent two years researching all the alternatives, and nothing has been done

'...you once described parking as the number one problem in Carmel. Do you still see it that way?'

Luce: There was an ad hoc committee appointed by Mayor Grace — including all segments of the community. There is all this talk about the antagonism between the residents and the business community, but when you get these people together to work on a similar goal, what you find is that you were thinking alike. You can come up with a similar goal. Now it's time to move forward and start making some of the these recommendations happen. That's what we are waiting for.

Pine Cone: How about the idea of maintaining a list of businesses that the city needs and currently doesn't have?

Jepson: Yes. I think this is a great idea, to tell you the truth. I have people who come into our office every day who would like to start a business in Carmel and say to me, "What don't you have?"

It's very difficult for me to say what the city doesn't have. It's even more difficult for me to say what it would allow. It's got to be a joint effort (between the CBA and the city). It would be very helpful to me and a lot of people to have that list.

Pine Cone: How about the problem of delivery trucks? Is there anything we can do about them, or are they just a fact of life on the streets of Carmel?

Jepson: One of the things I notice is the delivery trucks frequently don't use the delivery zones. They will park in the middle of the street rather than use them. Frequently the zone is vacant, and the trucks are in the middle of the street.

I would like to see the police enforce them a little bit more.

As far as having a central delivery, I don't ever see that happening. And that would make it difficult for merchants, because they would have to go in a truck to a central place. You'd spend your whole day picking up deliveries.

Pine Cone: Does the CBA have an official position on the proposed zoning changes for the downtown?

Luce: It's another one of those issues that has gone on far too long. I think it's been blown way out of proportion. I think our informal position - and again, we tend to listen to our members and try to gather as much information as possible — is that we would like to see the emphasis placed on case-by-case impacts on businesses rather than where lines are drawn.

Spiritual discussions offered

On the first Sunday of every month there will be an offering by St. Philip's Lutheran Church of music by Pat Mahoney's group "Homefire" along with discussion and spiritual exploration especially for persons who are not currently attending church. ## 'Gamboa didn't deceive anyone'

By SUSAN BECK

m T}$ HOMAS GAMBOA had no intent to deceive anyone according to his attorney, Michael McCracken.

"The crime was strictly liability," said McCracken, referring to fraud charges against his client in San Mateo County.

Gamboa was charged with seven counts of fraud and pleaded no contest to one count of securities fraud involving the Hacienda Gardens II-B Subdivision in Half Moon Bay.

"Gamboa got caught up in processing delays. The allegations here are one thing, the proof is another."

McCracken, who specializes in landuse litigation, said he respects Parker S. Kelly, San Mateo's deputy district attorney, but "if the DA thought he had a case he would have prosecuted."

Gamboa is the developer of the proposed Carmel Greens subdivision along Carmel Valley Road just east of Highway 1. He has until Dec. 16 to make restitution of $180,000 plus interest or be subject to the additional six felony charges along with a possible $260,000 fine and two years in state prison.

One of the charges states that Gamboa took down payments towards the purchase of land in the subdivision, but did not put the money into escrow.

"He screwed up," said McCracken, "but he's innocent. Our position was that the money was a loan and didn't have to go into escrow. The money did not go into his pocket. There were delays caused by the California Coastal Commission, and a moratorium. He ran out of money."

Gamboa made mistakes, said his attorney. "But he is rectifying them."

Despite his problems in San Mateo County, there is no backlash concerning his proposed 107-unit subdivision in Carmel. Monterey County Counsel Douglas Holland affirms that Gamboa's charges are consumer-related issues, not land-use regulation issues.

Sacred Esselen Indian sites in Carmel Valley may be destroyed

By SUSAN BECK

m T}_{
m HE}$  ESSELEN Tribe of Carmel Valley is determined to save 14 sacred sites from total destruction.

The sites are located between Princess Camp and Los Padres Dam in upper Carmel Valley, and the devastation is purportedly to happen upon construction of a proposed new Los Padres Dam and Reservoir requested by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

"The magnitude of the permanent loss of cultural resources in essence is the same as the spiritual ripping out of a part of our church. It's like trying to read the Bible without Genesis," said John Brennan, a engineer and adopted member of the tribe.

He said the new dam will have a spillway at 1,120 feet and will flood sacred Esselen land, which includes burial grounds, middens (sub-surface with pottery remains and/or shell particles), bedrock mortars, altars, and a complete village site. "The permanent flooding will have significant adverse, unmitigable impacts. It's like going to Monterey and raising the level of El Estero Lake and flooding over the San Carlos Catholic Cemetery," said Brennan. "If in fact the people in the area need another water supply, this is not the way. The cost to the Esselen Tribe in terms of permanent loss is unacceptable."

Possible alternatives

Desalinization or dredging the existing dam are alternates that are more feasible, said Brennan. "The argument that dredging would stir up toxic waste is extraordinarily questionable. El Estero was dredged, and it's in the middle of a city. The urban run-off was put on Ryan Ranch without any known adverse impacts. The dam site has wilderness runoff, which couldn't be more pure."

After the water district applied for a water allocation permit, the State Water Resources Control Board ordered an archaeological study of the area.

The preliminary judgment of the study declared that the sacred sites within the project area are eligible for the National Register of Historic Places as members of a prehistoric noncontiguous district.

Also, in the archaeological report, it was determined that a less severe plan should be negotiated with representatives of the Esselen descendents to address the full range of Native American concerns.

"This is crucial because the (water) board, despite environmental impacts, can develop findings overriding public concerns that subordinate the loss of our cultural resources forever," said Brennan.

Positive aspects

Henrietta Stern, senior project planner for the water district, said that she can empathize with any individual of the Esselen Tribe who is upset about the prospect of the dam, but personally she thinks the project has more positive aspects than negative.

The project is three-fold: to increase a drought reserve, to provide adequate water for future growth already approved in area general plans, and to help restore the Carmel River, particularly the lower river area, therefore allowing for the repopulation of the steelhead and other local fish.

"Their concerns are certainly valid, I can't argue with that," said Stern. "I am respectful of what they consider culturally important." But, she said the tribe is basing its response on studies done at an elevation of 1,200 feet.

"The consultants used the 1,200 feet contour as a definition of the project area, but the actual proposed site is at an elevation of 1,130 feet, and the spillway would not effect several sacred sites. The lake will be lower and not extend as far as they think."

About desalination, said Stern, it is very expensive and there is still no water for the river. Dredging, she said, even if the existing Los Padres Dam and San Clemente Dam were in pristine condition, would store only 15 percent of the amount of water used on the Monterey Peninsula.

The decision to build a new dam will ultimately be made by the voters as well as federal and state agencies that approve permits for the project.

She said it is very clear to her that it is necessary to build the new dam in order to save the river.

"There are 105,000 people who live here now and use the river. If the dam is built it will be required to release water during the dry part of the year so that the Carmel River can run to the ocean year round. We will be recreating the conditions similar to the way it was when the Indians lived here alone," said Stern.

"They say they sing and dance to bring the steelhead back. With the new dam they can celebrate the return of the fish," said Stern.

The Esselen Tribe is considered to be the first of the California Indian groups to have become culturally extinct, probably because of their small population of about 500 to 1,000 people.

For at least 4,000 years the tribe lived in the Cachagua Valley and in the Carmel River watershed. Several members of the tribe exist today, and the Nason family, documented descendants, have lived in the area since 1774.

The Nason's have continued to make their living from the resources of the river. The family operates upriver wilderness pack trips. Esselen Native American heritage is deeply rooted in the Carmel River and its ecosystem, and the Nasons conduct trips to sacred ceremonial sites throughout the year.

Tom Little Bear Nason, spokesperson for the Esselen Tribe said, "We feel that our culture is so thin and this is one of the most important sites which we would like to see it protected for our future generations. The sacred sites and burial ground should not be disturbed according to Native American tradition."

Traditionally, the tribe used the entire river from San Clemente Dam to 12 miles behind the current Los Padres Dam, including the Miller fork of the Carmel River where the Nason family homesteaded on the banks of the river. The tribe still has fishing areas clearly marked out along this run of the river.

One possibility of removing the sites to another area is out of the question, said Brennan. It is not possible to relocate masses of rock, graves and middens without their destruction. "You can't dig up the site without destroying the relationship of the entire community."

He said that the tribe and supporters plan to take this as far as they can. "We are engaging highly competent attorneys across the county who deal with Native American rights to help us."

Hearings regarding the Esselen Tribe protest will be held in Sacramento in August.

Belief in the future

TREMENDOUS THANK you's to the Pebble Beach Foundation and the Monterey Peninsula Golf Foundation (AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro Am) for their fantastic support of the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center. These two philanthropic organizations believe in the future of the youth of the Monterey Peninsula and take great strides in supporting their activities. In the past week we have received grants from both foundations and greatly appreciate their generosity, recognition of our needs, and belief in our community organization.

Our facilities are being used now more than ever before. The center was built in 1954, and nearly forty years later, it needs to be renovated to meet the demands of such increased usage. The kitchen and bathrooms are in desperate need of remodeling. We need $40,000 to complete the project.

We have just been given the opportunity to receive $2,500 from the Community Foundation for Monterey County if you will help us out. For every dollar you send in, the Community Foundation will match each dollar!

This is a challenge to our community to help complete our renovation project. Join us in investing in Carmel Valley and send your tax deductible gift for the CVCYC Building Fund to P.O. Box 124, Carmel Valley, 93924.

The numbers of families, and especially youth, of Carmel Valley are growing at an astounding rate. Of registered students, over 45 percent of high school students and 40 percent of middle school aged students live in the valley. Read any newspaper, and you must agree that our families are so lucky to live in a peaceful community.

To continue that tradition of harmony, we are establishing a Youth Advisory Board in September. The board will consist of representatives from sixth grade through high school, and will be in direct communication with the youth center's board of directors. Our goal is to discover first-hand, their needs and ideas — and to help them to create a youth center in the future which they can truly call their own.

Many of us came to Carmel Valley because of an oldfashioned sense of community and appreciation for rural life. Let's pull together and keep it that way!

Our dreams go way beyond the successes of today. Please don't rely on your neighbor to contribute, but give as much as you can now! Invest in Carmel Valley and the future of our youth!

Star search

Young Jesse told his mother he saw Burt Reynolds and Dennis Miller at the bus stop in Carmel this week. His mother said, "Did you talk to them? I'll bet they're here for the premiere of Clint Eastwood's movie."

This reporter can't confirm Jesse's sighting, and was barely able to grab a photo of hometown hero Clint, in the near manic crush of local photographers imitating paparazzi, as they elbowed each other in the backstage parking lot at the premiere of Unforgiven, all of them starved for a celebrity photo op.

The stars behaved true to type as well, being careful not to make eye contact.

The local shooters gloated to one another.

"I got Jonathan Winters."

"Oh yeah, well I got John Denver, but he sure wasn't like I thought he would be. What a grouch!"

A blonde on the sidelines chortled.

"I got the original Lois Lane."

Petite Heidi Mitchell from KSBW had stars in her eyes after her brief interview with Tom Selleck.

"He's the most adorable thing in the world," she sighed.

On the other side of the stage, it could have been King City at rodeo time, as the cowgals and buckaroos ate barbecue, sang along with the band, danced and bought a few beers at the bus stop bars and snapped souvenir photos in front of Tom and Debby Harris' authentic stage coach.

They hooted and hollered when John Denver sang a short version of Home on the Range. Jonathan Winters gave them five minutes and Chuck Norris made a brief appearance. After Clint, wearing black walking shoes and a green polo shirt, made a modest statement of welcome, a cowboy in black Wranglers and fashionable spurs remarked, "I think he's been in New York too long."

Over their heads the theater marquee announced, "Welcome to the Star Studded World Premiere of Unforgiven."

TODAY'S VICTIMS

William Munny, a typical Clint Eastwood anti-hero in meteing out frontier justice in Unforgiven.. Today's justice is not so expedient.

A woman with long brown hair, an easy smile and brown eyes made up to accentuate her resemblance to country western singer Crystal Gayle, sits on a wooden bench outside a court room. She tells the woman who sits down next to her that she was up at 6:00 a.m., delivering newspapers. Now, at 10:00 she's freshly showered, wearing a sleeveless sundress that shows off her tan.

She says she's waiting for her attorney, and in conversation, the two women discover they share the same lawyer. The lawyer, known by reputation as the best and meanest family law practitioner in the county, appears as if out of nowhere. His grey hair curls over the collar of his stained green sport coat, and he talks to each one, taking care not to say too much.

The women sit back, wondering about each other.
One of them reads a notice posted on the courtroom door announcing a class on what to do in a courtroom medical emergency.

Then a man approaches their bench. He's tall, has curly hair, an earring. He stops.

"Don't ever forget," he snarls at the doe-eyed brunette, pointing a finger at her. "You'll be sorry you ever messed with me."

The woman's mouth flies open, her body slams against the bench in a recoil from his hate. The man walks down the hall.

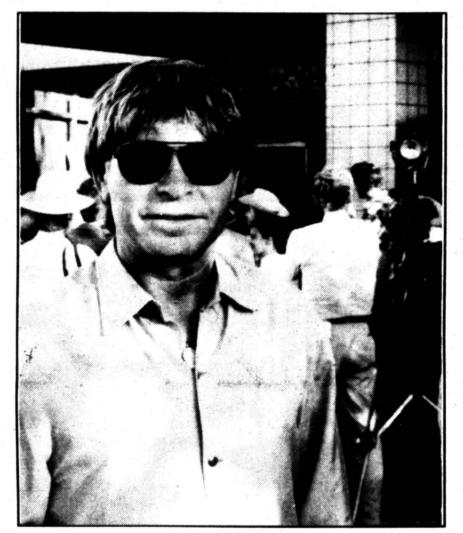

Her words come spilling out.

"Can you believe that? I've been divorced from him for nine years. He's molested every one of my children, made my life miserable and he does something like that! My lawyer is drawing up papers right now to make him take a polygraph test. It's unbelievable."

A knowing look, a nod and the brunette and her bench partner immediately recognize one another as sisters. They will never see each another again, but for a few moments they share a space outside a courtroom, a lawyer, and the pain that comes from trying to work within the family law system. They know that in

Venturing north to the Napa Wine Auction Part III

I OWE you two more recipes before I highlight the wine bids which of course was the focus of this event. Ah, sometimes a chef's bias gets in the way, oh well.

GRILLED CALIFORNIA QUAIL WITH APRICOT-JALAPEÑO CONSERVE From the CALISTOGA INN by CHEF LEO KLEINHANZ — 3 lbs. ripe apricots, 3 C white sugar, 2 lemons (juice and grated or chopped rind), 1 TBSP grated ginger, 1 tsp kosher salt, 1 tsp fresh chopped jalapeño pepper, 1 TBSP fresh chopped cilantro. Process apricots in food processor to duplicate a "rough cut" (textured, not pureed). Put in saucepan and add sugar, juice and rind of the lemons, ginger and salt, Bring to a gentle boil, reduce heat and simmer, stirring frequently for one hour. Pour into sterilized containers and seal, or if you are using within 30 days, simply refrigerate. As you require the apricot base, to each cup add 1 tsp fresh jalapeño and 1 TBSP fresh cilantro. Use this as a basting sauce when grilling any type of poultry and serve in a side dish as a condiment. The sweet-hot is a delicious combination on grilled meats.

RED PEPPER PANCAKES WITH SMOKED SALMON AND SHRIMP ROE From TABLE 29 by CHEF JONATHAN WAXMAN —2 red bell peppers, 3 eggs, 4 oz. smoked salmon, 2 ears sweet corn, 2 oz. shrimp roe, fresh, 1 C Pinot Blanc, 1 bunch cilantro, 1/2 C creme fraiche, 1/4 C flour, 1/4 C butter,, 1 TBSP chives and 1 lemon. Over open flame, char skin of red peppers. Steam for 15 minutes. Slit, drain juice, peel, seed, and core both peppers. Cut 1 pepper into strips, and puree the other. In a medium stainless steel bowl, place flour and yolks of eggs plus 4 TBSP red pepper puree. With a whisk, fluff mixture until homogeneous. Melt 2 oz. butter and add to mixture. Reserve at room temperature. Cut corn off cob and sauté briefly in remaining butter. Salt and pepper to taste. Place wine in a saucepan with 2 TBSP red pepper puree. Simmer on medium heat until liquid has evaporated. Add corn and cream and bring to boil. Keep warm. Thinly slice smoked salmon and cut into strips. Finely mince chives. In small bowl add creme fraiche, 1/2 of the smoked salmon, 1/2 the chives, 1/2of the pepper strips. Beat together just until incorporated. To make pancakes, whip egg whites until frothy. Place 1/3 egg whites into flour/pepper mixture, then fold in enough egg white to make a consistent pancake batter. Re-heat corn mixture. Cook pancakes without oil or butter (2-3"diameter) over medium heat until reddish-golden brown. Put 2 cakes each on 8 plates. Surround with corn sauce and top pancakes with creme fraiche mixture. Decorate plates with remaining smoked salmon, red pepper strips, shrimp roe, chives and sprigs of cilantro, Serves 8.

Doris Day's Best Friends

By Doris Day

Feline leukemia virus update

DID YOU know...

•The only way to absolutely protect your cat from feline leukemia virus infection is to keep him indoors all the time.

•Leukemia vaccines do not provide 100 percent protection against the virus, but the protection they afford is better than none at all so veterinarians do recommend them — particularly for outdoor cats and multiple-cat households.

•The infection is highly contagious and is passed along by mutual grooming, sharing of food bowls and fighting. Contact with other cats is necessary for infection because the virus doesn't live long outside the cat.

My advice: Have your cat tested for FeLV. If he tests positive, it's imperative that you isolate him to prevent infection of other cats. He'll also need lots of TLC, highquality foods and veterinary supervision to keep him healthy as long as possible.

First-aid for pets

Emergency first-aid kits are just as important for your pets as they are for your human family. Being prepared gives you an edge when it comes to dealing with emergencies.

Your pet's first-aid kit should contain any medications he requires, along with an explanation of the proper dosages; gauze to make bandages, tape, scissors, tweezers, antibiotic ointment, a rectal thermometer; and a pet first-aid manual. Also, remember that aspirin, the safest and best analgesic for home veterinary care for DOGS, is especially toxic to CATS. Aspirin and acetaminophen (Tylenol) should only be given to cats under veterinary direction.

Keep a two-week supply of pet food handy and replace it periodically so the emergency supply is always fresh. Bottled water is essential, too.

Lastly, invest in a sturdy pet carrier. It's a safe, secure shelter and a "must" when transporting your doggy or kitty-cat.

Garden tips

•Watch out for plants that can be toxic to your dog or cat. Some, like hyacinth and tulip bulbs, are so potent they can kill your pet! Your nurseryman should be able to tell you which plants are safe to use around pets.

 Don't let your birdbath be a watering hole for your Best Friend. Ingestion of bird droppings can cause seizures, coma, even death.

Flea repellent

I have another tidbit about flea control that I haven't yet tried, but I've heard it works. Did you know that Skin-So-Soft, from Avon, is supposed to be a flea repellent? Well, that's the word I'm getting from pet owners and veterinarians, and I just read an article about flea control in Cat Lovers magazine that recommended this product,

Just mix 1-1/2 ounces of Skin-So-Soft in one gallon of water and use it as a dip for your dog or cat after bathing. Blow-dry or air-dry your pet; don't towel-dry or you'll remove the dip. Why not give it a try? All you have to lose are fleas!

See you next time!

There are places for kids to improve their tennis and golf, for instance, and now they'll have a place where they can improve their baseball skills."

At Cages, the new owner, along with his father Tom, will offer batting instruction. Thirty-minute lessons will cost $25 while a special set of three lessons will cost $60 and include a video and certificate of completion. ### Binoculars for near-sighted economists

THIS IS the first in a four-part series of articles "on the economy" from an astrological point of view and will run consecutively over the next several weeks; except for the August 13th edition which will astrologically report the Republican Convention.

Recently, a financial newsletter was plopped into my lap entitled The Kondratieff Wave and after reading it, researching the authors birth data and running charts, decided it bears careful study.

"See me for all your family insurance needs."

Barney J. Belleci 26555 Carmel Rancho Blvd. P.O. Box 221399 Carmel, Ca. 93922 624-6466

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

Nikolay Kondratev, a former Pisces (there are three spellings for his last name) lived and died between 1892 and 1938. He was a Western economist noted for his analysis/theory of major 50-year business cycles known as the Kondratev's waves. He helped develop the first of the Soviet five-year plans, including "methods" for analyzing economic factors that affected its growth. For his work, he was tried, falsely accused (Neptune), cleared, then arrested in 1931. After seven years his sentence was reviewed, and in 1938 he received the death penalty, exact date and place unknown (Very Pisces and Neptune indeed). But, what else would you expect from a Scorpio country?

According to most economists, the current cycle began about 1951 (since it is only approximately 54 years long) and we are well past the peak. According to past experience, a "decline" in markets occurs somewhere around 10 years after the peak.

Mary Downing, an astrologer, has observed that whenever Pluto (transitting) reaches 23-degrees of a fixed sign or 8-degrees of a Cardinal sign, these are times that the markets change direction dramatically. For example, in 1921, T. Pluto was in 8-degrees Cancer; 1954 it was 23-degrees Leo and 1974, 8-degrees Libra. At each of these times, a Bear Market reversed and a Bull Market began. The next time this happens is later this year... on November 18th when Pluto reaches 23-degrees Scorpio. This should not be taken as an exact time, but given past history, I suspect that the market will become increasingly "unstable" at this time.

Dismissed as irregular

Economist, Dr. Ravi Batra, author of The Great Depression of 1990 missed the mark and blew it in his prediction, which was inadequate. He dismissed the Kondratieff Wave as irregular. I feel he didn't do enough research with his Venus in 20-degrees of Leo.

Many stubborn people with fixed signs (Taurus, Leo. Scorpio and Aquarius) will need to be beaten severly about the head and shoulders, followed by a spiritual 2 x 4 before they stop, look and listen to any astrologer or economist like Donald J. Hoppe, author of The Kondratieff Wave monthly financial newsletter. However, the major crack in the economy will do that for the non-listener who prefers the Neptune "denial state of mind" anyway, and the dust won't settle until the current cycle ends and a new one begins. If we're not all well-informed and educated in this stuff by then, perhaps it will be time to move to another place that doesn't belong to a capitalist society.

In support of The Kondratieff Wave and Donald J. Hoppe, business cycles are not new in this country. They have happened over and over and over again for the past 200 years and then some, so let's get with the program, and in these remaining articles learn to "surf" the Kondratiess wave together rather than ignore it. For example, the stock market has to crash. It has to be Virgo motivated rather than Pisces, for example, the AMEX has its Neptune in the 12th house of "I prefer to be in denial, thank you very much."

The first razor's edge will occur by mid-November (1992) and it will be time to "clean house" before the end of the calendar year, as we are now in the "Contraction Phase" and there are also nine-year rides on top of the 54-year cycle that adds to or subtracts from the Kondratieff Wave. The Kondratieff Wave bottom won't hit until 2005. This is a "temporary thing," not the end of the world. In the ensuing weeks I'll elaborate on some of these things.

Father Farrell's Wisdom

Open brown envelopes

OH ALMICHTY and Eternal Father, we ask Thy blessing on these victuals as we pray that Thy love may shine upon us so that we can share it with our neighbors in unselfish service.

The first of the great Hebrew Patriarchs was Abraham, whom we call our Father in Faith because he was faithful to God's law and obedient to God's will. As a reward, God gave him a Covenant and much more than he asked or expected.

I have a Padre friend who is an ardent golfer and he uses golf stories in every sermon. Recently, he told parishioners of a king who had a golf partner who pleased him so much that he promised to give him anything he asked.

Being a humble and unselfish man, he asked for a new golf club. A week later the royal herald delivered a letter in a brown envelope; it contained a deed for a new 18-hole golf club. The Padre concluded by saying: "God gives us more than we ask for or even dream possible."

Most of the brown envelopes in our lives were unexpected and the sad thing is so many of them are not even opened. Amen.

Bill Munny (gritty Seeker) straps on the gun

Clint's latest cast gallops back to basics

CLINT EASTWOOD'S new film -Unforgiven - goes into general release Friday (8/7) at Galaxy 6 Theaters in Del Monte Shopping Center.

Eastwood acts in the title which he produced and directed. Other major players: Gene Hackman, Morgan Freeman, Richard Harris.

Carmel's former mayor, whose taciturn gunslingers have come to epitomize the Western anti-hero, thus stars in his 36th feature film as William Munny. County Supervisor Sam Karas has a role - and wife Edie Karas appears as an extra.

In recent years, Eastwood has given the public Bird—the filmic biography of jazz genius Charlie Parker — and White Hunter, Black Heart. With the latter, critics praised his visual and vocal take on the late film director John Huston.

The latest release (from Warner Brothers and Eastwood's own Malpaso Productions) marks a return to the genre which brought him worldwide fame. Yes the Great American Western.

Hiding out

Munny is an outlaw hiding from his past. Many years have gone by since he put down his gun, leaving behind an ugly reputation as a cold-blooded killer who robbed trains and shot up towns.

Now he lives quietly with his young son and daughter, working as a hog farmer out on the Kansas prairie. Munny's wife has recently passed away and it is clear that her influence changed him profoundly.

Still, he's a poor farmer with youngsters to support and his farm stock dwindling from fever. He's visited by The Schofield Kid (actor Jaimz Woolvett), who's looking for a partner to help him gun down a couple of cowboys and collect a bounty.

The Kid says the two men cut up a prostitute in a town called Big Whiskey.

The sheriff there, a practical ex-gunman named Little Bill Daggett (Gene Hackman), let the cowpokes off lightly. Outraged, the other women in the brothel got together the cash reward.

Munny decides to join The Kid if his old partner (Freeman) rides with them. The Freeman character agrees. Already at Big Whiskey is the killer-for-hire known as English Bob (Harris).

That's the setup. There's one final resolution of friendship, frontier law and revenge — a resolution which calls up much action.

Awards gathered

Hackman won an Academy Award as Best Actor (1971) for his portrayal of lawman Popeye Doyle in The French Connection. He most recently was nominated for his role as an FBI agent in Mississippi Burning.

Freeman has been honored many times - Drama Desk and Oble awards for theater work and two Academy Award nominations. Harris was nominated by

CAA tribute exhibit honors Donald Teague

By JOHN DETRO

HE WAS that rarity — a tremendously talented painter who put forth humility and kindness in daily life.

The late Donald Teague will be celebrated via a tribute show which opens at the Carmel Art Association Gallery today (8/6) and remains up through Sept. 1.

Teague (1897-1991) is represented in the special exhibit by more than 100 watercolors and oils borrowed by CAA from private collections all over this coun-

"We're marking our 65th anniversary with this event," Gallery Director Gael Donovan said. "So we're especially delighted that some of his greatest awardwinning works were made available for the public viewing."

The facility's hours: 10-5 daily. It's on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth.

Teague was a member of CAA, American Watercolor Society, Bohemian Club, National Academy of Design, National Academy of Western Art, Salmagundi

His major awards included: American Watercolor Society (Grand Prize 1953), American Watercolor Society (Gold Medal 1964), National Academy of Design (Francis Murphy Memorial Prize 1932), National Academy of Design (Gold Medal 1948), Franklin Mint (Gold Medal 1973 and 1975).

Teague was a successful illustrator for national magazines. In 1929, on a trip to England, he started using watercolor and fell in love with the medium. He began entering competitive shows and soon won the coveted Murphy Memorial.

The Teagues — Donald and wife Verna and their two daughters — moved to Carmel in 1949. His paintings have been exhibited at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, Chicago Art Institute, Royal Watercolor Society (London), many other important venues.

A VARIED lineup will take the Sum-mer Music Festival stage on Saturday., Aug. 8, at Laguna Seca Recreation Area.

Longtime producer Dave Svec notes: that the event from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m. is being presented under the auspices of Monterey Bay Girl Scout Council (which will receive the profits).

Headliners include the group WAR, Country Joe McDonald, vocalist Nicolette Larson, the 10-piece Zulu Spear band from South Africa, Caribbean All-Stars, Cardiff Reefers reggae crew.

Tickets will be available at the gate only — $12 general and $5 for youngsters 6-12 and seniors. Children below the stated age range will be admitted free of Troubador Tim Culbertson will appear both in the main area and special children's space. Also entertaining the kids will be folk artist Alisa Fineman and modern minstrel David Maloney, games, arts and crafts, puppet shows.

Camp sites adjacent to the festival may be reserved through Monterey County Park Sustem. Call 755-4899.

WAR will go to work at about 3 p.m. This unit rose to stardom in the 1970s with such hits as Cisco Kid and World Is A Ghetto. Founding members Howard Scott, Lonnie Jordan and Lee Oskar will be on hand, it was reported.

McDonald will go on at about 1 p.m. with Nicolette Larson following an hour later. (She has made nearly all the charts — rock, pop, country — and appears on Neil Young's new album. The legendary Country Joe needs no introduction.)

Zulu Spear will close the fest at about 6 p.m. The high energy band now calls San Francisco its home base.

Caribbean All-Stars have a new recording due soon (Carlos Santana helped out on some tracks) and also work in the makossa, high life, soca and calypso styles.

From San Diego, the Cardiff Reefers will get the reggae groove going about noon. Their second album is scheduled for release this month.

Portofino offering

Meanwhile, Portofino Coffee House in Pacific Grove has booked prize-winning folk singer and songwright Rob Laurens for Saturday evening, Aug. 8. Eight o'clock; $6 per.

San Franciscan Laurens took home the 1990 Kerrville Festival New Folk Award for composing. He recently released his second cassette — The Fields of Kingdom Come.

One critic remarks: "Laurens has writmajestic and captivating songs...evidence of his Whitmanesque love (for this country). His soft voice rides over simple but lovely melodies...that rise and fall like gentle breezes."

Out of town

Over in San Juan Bautista, El Teatro Campesino Playhouse will spotlight the Marcus Loya Band at a "special dance concert" on Saturday night, Aug. 8.

The three-hour event will start at 9 p.m. Reservations: 1-623-2444.

Loya's new recording — Love Is The Reason — topped the adult pop charts earlier this year. He described his music as "Latin-based" and "pop fused."

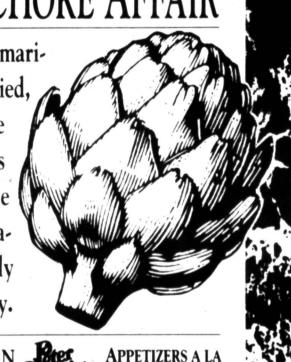

And: "I really look at this album as forging a new link between American and Spanish music. Latin music in general is really misunderstood and regarded in stereotypical terms by the music business today. Changing that image is the center of our activism."

Bright ballet stars booked

By JOHN DETRO

WILL WONDERS never cease? Answer: Apparently the Source of radiant developments keeps good health these days.

Even I (lobbyist for bebop and chiliburgers) have been charmed by ballet artist Elizabeth Ashton through her work in TV films.

The peninsula's non-profit Ballet Fantasque has obtained her services. She and Nikolai Kabaniaev will appear as guest dancers in the Summer Ballet Festival on Saturday evening, Aug. 8, at the Steinbeck Forum of Monterey Conference Center.

The celebration of human grace starts at 8. A no-host bar will be available between acts.

"Don't forget that artists of San Francisco's Ballet Russe will be on the program as well," says Ballet Fantasque co-director Milou Ivanovsky.

Ashton, of course, was with American Ballet Theater. Kabaniaev's background includes the Kirov Ballet.

"How did we get them?" Milou asks back. "Well, there's a woman in San Francisco who handles (dance) people leaving Russia. Natalia Borisova. It was with her generous help that we assembled the Summer Ballet Festival."

Tickets cost $15 (general) and $10 (children, students, seniors). Advance treatment may be had at Abinante Music in downtown Monterey, Do Re Mi Music of The Barnyard and Pacific Grove's Bookworks.

It's one-night-only. See you there?

NOW BEING shown at Highlands Sculpture Gallery in Carmel (Dolores between Fifth and Sixth) are the bronzes of Sharon Andreason.

THE COLORFUL paintings of Jay Campbell are on display through Sept. 25 at Monterey Conference Center.

Forest show lighter than the summertime mist

in their take-off of William Shakespeare's The Comedy of

By ANNE PAPINEAU

IF THE Forest Theater Guild's current show, The Bous from Suracuse was much lighter, the production would uproot and float away in the direction of Carmel Bay. No heavy dish, this.

It's intentionally silly, frothy stuff. Rodgers and Hart seemed to have had a good time indulging in word play

The Boys from Suracuse bears less resemblance to Shakespeare than A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. Like that light-hearted musical, it is awash in burlesque comics, seductive showgirls and misty-eyed lovers, all framed by ancient columns. And, like Forum, much of the humor is of the anacronistic variety, kind of, "The Oracle of Delphi Goes to Brooklyn."

Director Aldo Bozzini has marshalled the forces of modern Carmel to bring an appropriately bawdy ancient Ephesus to life on the Forest Theater stage. The production values are quite high. Carey Crockett's two-story set artfully frames the action. It's a beautifully finished, eve-pleasing design. Karen Wilmshurst's costumes are another strength: colorful, appropriately maidenly or whorish as needed.

Musical director Barney Hulse makes liberal use of the synthesizer. It sweetly embellishes the most memorable song in the show, "Falling in Love." Other times that same instrument sounds oddly akin to the keyboard that tinkles after Mr. Rogers around his PBS neighborhood.

A broad comedy like this one employs a large cast of "types," not really rounded human beings but cardboard characters cast in the stock parts of leading lady. comic, matinee idol etc. Bozzini cast the roles well.

A number of people embellish these comic book characters with charisma and polish.

Colby Beserra, whose more than passing resemblance to teen idol Luke Perry drew comment within the audience, imbues his songs with a Harry Connick Jr. intonation. I hope he was saluting these stars intentionally, because his takeoff works.

Dromio Syracuse, as brought to life by James Kinney. is the surest performance of the night. He administers the slapstick with a deft touch, realizing every laugh and rim shot written into his part.

Teressa McKillop makes a firey Adriana, balanced by a lady-like Luciana (Nelia Morago). Garyth Evans-Tyler is also a stand-out in her leggy costume as The Courtesan, who had fun performing "Oh, Diogenes!" and Courtesan Ballet.

The Boys from Syracuse is a fun bit of frolic. It taxes not the mind. Catch it before it uproots and floats off on some bubble.

PRACTICE MAKES perfect, hm? This rehearsal shot shows that Forest Theater Guild players worked hard on The Boys from Syracuse. Rodgers and Hart musical runs through Aug. 23. Take sandwiches, dress warmly — and have big fun.

Jazz Tides

By John Detro

Ducats available

MONTEREY JAZZ Festival honcho Tim Jackson says "a limited number of season tickets still are available." These admit folks to the 1992 fairgrounds arena shows (9/18-20). Prices: $136.50 and $111.75. Call trusty Jan at the MJF office — 373-3366.

This space has run the Big Names more than once. It's simply the strongest lineup in years.

AIRWAVES: Monterey Peninsula TV Cable (MPTV) got its wires straightened out. Official word — KJAZ Radio will be put back into the FM lineup beginning Thursday, Aug. 27.

The Alameda-based all-jazz station was kicked out several weeks ago when MPTV brought on the Digital Music Express service for stereo system owners.

A premature press release stated last week that KJAZ would return Aug. 17. This information was pulled back swiftly along with much techno-babble that not even the MPTV public info person understood.

Bottom line: area jazz buffs wanted KJAZ and expressed their strong feelings to the powers that be (MPTV prexy Sal Balesteri and Brenda Shinault of the marketing desk).

All things considered, we may notch up a victory for the music and dedicated public response. "By far KJAZ has the strongest community support of any out-of-thearea station," the hired flack quoted Sal as saying.

So KJAZ will be offered to subscribers over MPTV-FM channel 92.9 when the 27th hits.

KAZU slate

Meanwhile, KAZU Public Radio has established its new strips — certain musical genres in stable Monday-Friday slots. The jazz schedule looks good.

Frankly, I'd feared for nighttime host David Gitin. He's so outspoken and busy — teaching, writing — that conflicts easily could have bumped him out the door. But Program Director Peter Williams kept his promise to work closely with individual deejays and negotiate the best possible solutions.

David's now on-air from 4-6:30 Wednesday afternoons. "He's probably the most knowledgeable jazz broadcaster in this region," Williams commented without sparking disagreement from yours truly.

The jazz strip precedes half an hour of news by the national Pacifica Service out of the nation's capital.

Other programmers: Freddie Horn (Monday), The Saint (Tuesday), ever-refreshing Carmen Wilson (Thursday), Gil Rubio (Friday).

And we can't forget the excellent Jim Bourne. He will retain his jazz show which runs from 9 p.m. until midnight Sundays.

The other strips are Classic Jazz and Vocals (6-9 a.m.), Folk/Country/Bluegrass (9-noon), Lifestyle Talk Shows (noon-1), Blues and Rock (1-4), Talk (7-8), Eclectic Evenings (8-11) and Modern Rock (three hours starting at 11)

Williams still needs volunteers to host Classic Jazz and Blues. Call him at 375-7275.

KRML offering

DAVID KIMBALL of KRML Jazz Radio's Saturday afternoon Let's Dance show was brought aboard by station boss Gil Wisdom as a consultant on marketing and programming.

It was Kimball who arranged to tape Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra on Monday nights at the Doubletree. These segments air from 4-6 p.m. Sundays.

Now David says he'll be recording the Jackie Coon Band each week at Casa Munras. The music will be broadcast from 6:30-7 on Wednesday evenings.

IF YOU care about high-quality jazz vocals, pleast don't miss New York singer Stephanie Nakasian on Monday night (8/10) at Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row. She'll appear in the series normally booked by reedman John Cortes, whose until will back her on that bright occasion. KRML deejay Johnny Adams worked as co-producer with venue owner Kelly Leonard on the Nakasian appearance. (Nine o'clock kick-off; $5 cover.)

Stephanie left behind a solid career in international banking. Her albums feature such players as Phil Woods and pianist Hod O'Brien — men who don't mess with second-raters. She put in two years with Jon Hendricks, singing the high trumpetlike parts which Jon created in the 1950s for Annie Ross. Today Nakasian does the uptempo tongue-twisters which Jon penned with himself in mind.

As an interpreter of ballads — well, I love the Gershwin tune Soon and the version recorded by this lady is the hippest and ultimately most magical I've heard. Ever.

It's rumored that a certain jazz-loving film star will be part of the audience. His new Western goes into general release Aug. 7 at Del Monte Center's Galaxy 6 Theater.

Be that as it may, Stephanie Nakasian will knock your socks off. Her Brazilian treatments could melt a taxman's heart. The festival circuit knows her well.

THE BAND Zytron is fronted by drummer and composer James Zitro. It goes from Pacific Grove's Portofino Coffee House (8/6) to the Crow's Nest at Santa Cruz Yacht Harbor (Thursday night 8/13). With Cortes, Murray Lowe (piano), Kenny Stahl (flutes), Frank Passantino (bass).

On Monday evening (8/10), Portofino will spotlight young jazz pianist Eddie Mendenhall leading a group of similarly youthful players. Eight o'clock; $3 per. Coming in there next week (8/13) — guitarist Peppino d'Agostino.

FREEBIES: The Summer Series at Carmel's Forest Theater continues on Sunday (8/9) with jazz vocalist Bill Allison and friends. Bill says he'll perform solid standards by jazz legends like Monk, Mingus, John Coltrane. Starts at 2 p.m.

That Jazz in the Park Series (at Laguna Grande Park on Canyon Del Rey) will feature master tenorman Red Holloway backed by the Cortes Quartet on Saturday afternoon (8/8). Opening the 1-4:30 bill is the trio of pianist and singer Alan Berman. Big fun in the sun.

At noon Friday (8/7), Carmel's Park Fest Series will feature guitarist Joseph Lucido's Mixed Bag with Weber Drummond on keyboards. Brazilian and straight-ahead American jazz in Devendorf Park. These 90-minute shows include free hot dogs for the kids.

KUUMBWA CENTER of Santa Cruz has trombonist Wayne Henderson's Next Crusade with saxist Wilton Felder. Yes, they were strong parts of the original Jazz Crusaders. Monday night (8/10); at 7:30 and 9:30; $14 advance (Ticketmaster) or $16 at the door.

Coming up at Kuumbwa: Steve Turre (8/17), John Scofield (8/24), McCoy Tyner Trio with Bobby Hutcherson (8/31), Annual Kuumbwa Birthday Party (9/6), Betty Carter (9/14), Delfeayo Marsalis Band (9/28), Geri Allen Trio (10/5), Airto and Fourth World (10/12), Stanley Turrentine (10/19).

NO COST: Henderson and Felder will work the San Jose Jazz Festival this weekend (8/8-9). Turre, Etta James, Strunz and Farrah, Viva Brazil, Eddie Harris, Mel Martin, Ray Obiedo, on and on. It all happens on five stages throughout downtown.

There'll be a Sunday morning Jazz Mass, jazz movies, club acts, jazz brunch. Call the festival office at 1-288-7557 for full details.

Road bard

Pomes All Sizes. By Jack Kerouac. City Lights Books. Pocket Poets Series (quality softcover). 175 pages. $8.95.

THE PLACE was packed. That crowd at Monterey Bay Coffeehouse Bookshop's Jack Kerouac Memorial Night showed how much local readers still care about the late Beat novelist and road bard.

Jerry Cimino, serious student of Kerouac works whose wife owns the handsome store, had plenty of audio and video tapes on hand. And everyone who felt so moved had time to read favorite passages by Jack and remember him from the old days in San Franicsco and Big Sur. (I spoke for perhaps 10 minutes about Neal Cassady, Kerouac's inspiration and model for the "holy goof" Dean Moriarty of On the Road. We got to know one another fairly well in 1963-64 on Santa Cruz mountain hikes and various highway drives.)

Folks were delighted when they saw the latest Kerouac title on display — and it's well worth the attention of anyone who enjoys that man's essentially innocent voice. Lawrence Ferlinghetti at City Lights Books held the manuscript in safe keeping for many years until John Sampas, brother of Jack's last and late wife Stella, released the material for publication.

As you likely know, the poet Allen Ginsberg was a close friend and longtime colleague of Kerouac. Allen here contributes an admiring Introduction which dares ivory tower types everywhere:

"Till Kerouac as poet's understood, his formal verse beauty visible to scholars, and his surprise mind tenderness taken straight-forwardly and felt by vulnerable Professors, the teaching of American literature'll never get on the right track...the nation won't exhale its own compassionate spirit, hordes of literary bureaucrats will continue to snuffle shallow inspiration and new generations'll be turned off to Poetry except for individual chance in finding this original Kerouac book or works by Kerouac fellow traveler poets like-minded and light-hearted on the same road announced by Walt Whitman."

And in a separate Part which examines the Beat Generation retrospectively: "...The doctrine of consciousness of Sunyata, emptiness, with all its transcendental wisdom including panoramic awareness, oceanic city vastness, a humoresque appreciation of minute details of the big dream, especially 'character in the bleak inhuman aloneness' in 'Memorial Cello Time,' is most clearly and consistently set forth in the body of Kerouac's prose, poetry, and essays."

This may seem a massive or merely silly claim. And yet, the poems are so clear, simple, playful — at once airy and tough — that Allen has nothing to be ashamed of. Nothing at all.

Examples

Kerouac celebrated direct experience. So let's simply experience some of his riffing, jazzbreak lines:

We've been waiting for you
Since Morning, Jack

—Why were you so long
Dallying in the sooty room?
This Transcendental Brilliance
Is the better part (Of Nothingness
I sing)

(from "Bowery Blues")

In some cases
The moon is you

In any case The moon

(from "The Moon")

The universe is a lady Holding within her the unborn light— Our Lady....

(from "Lady")

Playful, jazzy, innocent. And foolish? Yes, of course — as faith is always a bit foolish. I'm glad this collection finally has arrived, and I believe you will be too.

Clint gets back to the basics with new Western offering

the Academy in 1990 for his starring role in The Field. Screenwriter David Webb Peoples previously co-wrote the science fiction classic Blade Runner with Ridley Scott. Music's by jazzman and composer Lennie Niehaus, who works on Eastwood projects regularly. (Eastwood and Niehaus first met when both were young soldiers at Fort Ord.)

On location

Filmed entirely on location in Alberta (Canada) and Sonora (California), Unforgiven brings an unsentimental view of the American West. The film encompasses an elemental view of life — revealed by characters whose destiny is determined by events out of their control.

In short, here's a spare, revisionist look at the making of heroes and legends. An important character is a dime store novelist on the hunt for material.

The filming required construction of a town which would realistically reflect the 1880s. All indications of modern life had to be absent — not just on the immediate premises, but for an uninterrupted 360-degree vista.

Working in cooperation with Alberta Film Commissioner Bill Marsden, Eastwood personally chose the site for Big Whiskey as well as the placement of the Munny and Logan farms and Bill Daggett's lakeside house.

Accuracy

Production Designer Henry Bumstead and Buddy Van Horn (technical consultant, dean of stunt coordinators) joined Eastwood's demand for accuracy. Van Horn made sure that all the actors could ride, all stunts were properly choreographed, real cowboys were used as extras and background whenever possible.

"He isn't one-dimensional," Eastwood says of character William Munny. "He went through it all. He survived. And now he's forced by circumstances to turn back to what he left. He has got kids and responsibilities and a debt of love for his wife. He gave her his word that he wouldn't pick up the guns, but it's what he knows...it's who he is."

And Unforgiven tells the story of his fate.

RICHARD HARRIS plays English gunfighter.

CARMEL'S FORMER mayor stars with Morgan Freeman in latest Eastwood film. The two men are bounty-hunting partners. Also starring is Gene Hackman, who plays a cruel lawman. Bill Munny (the Eastwood character) is a former gunslinger who lost his wife and now has children to support. So he has not much choice when the offer comes to pick up his firearms and hit the trail once more. To its credit, the title refuses to glorify the violence of the shootout. County Supervisor Sam Karas plays a role.

Our own personal Cuisinartist

The Covey's Master Chef Robert Williamson — the orchestrates our juicers, poachers, toasters, blenders, mixers, roasters, and dessert-makers. He's also caterer to some of the most privileged palates we know. Here he generously shares one of his secrets that makes The Covey — simply the best:

In these days of low fat cooking it is useful to have on hand some of the most intensely flavored oils. A splash of sesame, mustard or extra virgin olive oil will add zip to an otherwise plain dish without going overboard on the fat.

Here's another tip: Do you have a taste for the good life? So do we. Join us at The Covey restaurant just 3.4 miles from Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road • Cocktails from 5 pm - dinner every evening from 6:30 pm • jackets and reservations requested (408) 624-1581.

Night birds: some musicmakers who heighten our lives

Brazilian jazz pianist Eliane Elias posed at Kuumbwa Center for local lensman Will Wallace.

Roger Kellaway played Hidden Valley recently.

The Chris Cain Band: constant crowd-pleaser.

Thunderbird Books announces that James DiEugenio will discuss and sign copies of his new title — Destiny Betrayed: JFK, Cuba, and the Garrison Case. Time and place: 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 11, in The Barnyard Community Room. No admission charge.

"DiEugenio gives the reader the opportunity to completely understand what occurred during the Jim Garrison inquiry into the assassination and the resulting trial of Clay Shaw," the announcement says. "The author not only studied all the existing research, but also traveled the United States interviewing many of the survivors of this drama...He was granted access to the privately held, original Shaw trial transcript...Everything in the book is fully documented."

The book's introduction was written by Zachary Sklar...co-writer of the screen-play for JFK with Stone."

Zantman Galleries at Sixth and Mission in Carmel invite one and all to a reception from 3-6 p.m. Saturday (8/8). The event kicks off a new show of paintings by "European tour leader" Robert Moesle. This time — his remarkable impressions of Italy.

Program notes declare: "We explore the small resort towns of Portofino, Riomaggiore and Cinqueterre along the Ligurian coast. Another stop is more familiar -Venice with its broad canals and ever-shifting patterns of light."

And: "Moving south, we pass through the Umbrian Valley, the home of St. Francis, to visit the historic hillside towns of Perugia, Assisi. Then it's on to Rome....Our journey ends south of Naples with an excursion down the romantic Amalfi coast and visits to Pompeii and Paestum...."

Paintings may be purchased before the show. Since the past several exhibits there "have been sell-outs," it is suggested that interested parties contact Zantman before that reception. Sales Director Helen Whitcomb may be reached at 624-8314.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE of BEVERLY H. CARTIER CASE NO. MP12216

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate, or both, of BEVERLY H. CARTIER.

A PETITION has been filed by BANK OF AMERICA, NT&SAinthe Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY. THE PETITION requests that BANK OF AMERICAN, NT&SA be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decendent.

THE PETITION requests that the decendent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to be proposed action). The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on August 28, 1992 at 9:30 a.m. located at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, Ca. 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The Time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interseted in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
